

POSTAL BRANCH NEEDS CHANGES

Many Bureau Chiefs Have Been Discharged Because of Recent Investigations.

MUST BE FILLED

The President and Postmaster General Must Apply the Civil Service Rules Very Strictly.

[Special By Scripps-McLae.]

Washington, Oct. 28.—The conclusion of the investigation in the post-office department and Gen. Bristow's report on the same, have brought a new embarrassment to the administration. Every chief of a bureau in the first assistant postmaster general's division has been discharged, and many have been indicted, as a result of the investigation.

These positions are now temporarily filled by postoffice inspectors and Postmaster General Payne is looking about for new men to be appointed to the vacancies, but he finds that under the civil service rules he is helpless. There are only two ways in which he can fill these positions, by asking the civil service commission to transfer men from other departments, and by certifying to him their names for each position from which to choose.

Cannot Take Outsiders.

Under the circumstances by which these places were made vacant, the civil service rules are peculiarly embarrassing. The men who have been discharged and indicted have filled the postoffice department with scandals that have at times threatened the reputation of the administration.

The president insists that the men who take their places shall be above reproach and experienced. The postmaster general has had men recommended to him from outside the government service; men who have become expert auditors and judges of supplies, and superintendents of large business details, who would be capable of introducing strict business methods in the department.

Civil Service Rules Hamper.

But these recommendations have no weight with the government because the postoffice department is under civil service regulations, with every position classified except those of the postmaster general, his four assistants and their private secretaries. Neither the postmaster general, nor the president can use any personal judgment in selecting successors to Machen, Beavers, and all the other officials that have been indicted.

The postmaster general prefers the inspectors that are temporarily in charge, but they are needed in their own work. The president is a civil service reformer, but he must now reform the civil service rules he signed recently or suspend them in order to secure experienced men in the postoffice department.

Barrett Demands Hearing.

Harrison J. Barrett, whose disbarment from practice before the post-office department, for alleged wrongful acts disclosed by the general postal investigation, has been announced, has written a letter to the postmaster general under date of Baltimore, Oct. 27, in which he expresses surprise that no specification of charges has been presented and no hearing has been allowed him.

The preliminary hearing in the case of Leopold J. Stern of Baltimore, indicted for complicity in postal frauds, was concluded in the police court yesterday, and Stern was held in $5,000 bail to await the action of the grand jury. He furnished the bail and was released.

CONGRESSMAN IS KING AMONG FREE MASONS

James D. Richardson Is Elected Grand Master of the Royal Order of Scotland of America.

[Special By Scripps-McLae.]

Washington, Oct. 28.—James D. Richardson, erstwhile Democratic leader in the house of representatives, is a king among Masons. By his election as provincial grand master of the royal order of Scotland of America, recently he was elevated to the highest Masonic position in the world and is the ranking man in every organization with which Masons are connected. The position will be his as long as he lives and besides sitting on a throne not greatly unlike that of a king or emperor he will receive a salary of $3,000 per annum and have all his railroad and other expenses paid whenever he turns his hand to Masonic business.

In addition to that he may live in a palatial residence free and have servants furnished him by the members of the organization over which he presides. As commander of the southern jurisdiction, another office he holds, he has control over the Masonic organizations in all states except those in the East and North.

Mr. Richardson also controls Masons in Hawaii, China, Japan, the Philippines, Guam, Cuba, Porto Rico and as fast as the United States can procure new possessions his power will extend. Only two other men have attained the position of provincial grand master, the late Gen. Albert Pike and Josiah Drummond of Maine.

UNCLE TOM STILL DRAWS THE CROWD

Story of Ante Bellum Days Does Not Lose Any of Its Delight for Audiences.

Uncle Tom and his troubles and the sweet character of little Eva always draw a good house. Then the bloodhounds and the wonderful escape of Eliza across the ice of the Ohio river have a charming effect upon many people who go every time an Uncle Tom's Cabin company comes to town. Fine stage settings and excellent specialties added to the entertainment last evening and the Myers Grand was well filled with theatre goers who suffered with Uncle Tom and rejoiced at the downfall of the wicked slave drivers. It was a good production and was well received by the enthusiastic audience. The parade during the noon hour had given the audience what to expect and they were not disappointed.

Williams was on his way in a prairie schooner from South Omaha to Kansas City, his wife and little daughter accompanying him. Razee followed them to Beatrice and there paid court to Mrs. Williams. He entered into negotiations for the purchase of Williams' horses and bought them, having an understanding that he should also take Mrs. Williams. Razee and Mrs. Williams set out for Kansas City immediately after the trade was concluded.

HUGE BLOODHOUND OVERPOWERS BOY

Lad. Dragged Twenty Feet by Huge Canine—Spectacular Incident of Parade Yesterday.

Frank Banker, aged fifteen years, was dragged twenty feet along the muddy street yesterday afternoon by a ferocious bloodhound. Banker had offered his services to the Uncle Tom's Cabin company and was told he could lead one of the big dogs in the parade. All went well until the canine at the other end of the string which the boy held, espied a bull dog "rubbering" from the corner. This was just as the procession turned off River street. The bull dog was evidently aware of the reputation of his tribe had in the city for he cast some insulting glances in the direction of the hound. That was sufficient. With a sudden plunge, the show dog rushed for the animal on the sidewalk. Banker had a tight hold on the string and kept it, but was thrown from his feet by the force of the jerk. Before assistance was at hand the boy had been pulled some distance in the mud. Besides receiving a good coating of dirt he was not hurt and the hound was taken in charge by one of the members of the troupe. The two dogs did not have an opportunity to settle their differences.

MINERS DESTROY PROPERTY

Spanish Trade Unionists Are Guilty of Outrage.

Bilbao, Spain, Oct. 28.—The striking miners have destroyed with dynamite a railroad roundhouse and the electric light and telephone plants. The strike, which has now spread to all the mines in the district, causes great anxiety, as the employers persist in refusing to consider the demands for the weekly payment of wages until the men resume work. The aim of the employers, it is said, is to induce the men to negotiate with them directly without the intervention of the unions. The socialists are taking a prominent part in the agitation.

MUNGER-RUMRILL NUPTIALS TODAY

Eighty Guests Attended Wedding of Janesville Young People at Four O'clock This Afternoon.

Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by Miss Marjorie Nicholson, accompanied by Otto Dreyer, violinist, ushered in the bridal party at the "Linn" street residence of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Rumrill promptly at four o'clock this afternoon. Miss Fannie O. Rumrill, the bride, wore a gown of white grenadine over Dolly Varden silk and carried a bouquet of white brides' roses. Miss Minerva Fisher, bridesmaid, wore a gown of white and carried pink roses. Percy L. Munger, the groom, was attended by Evert Fisher.

The wedding ceremony was performed under a bower of palms and southern smilax in the parlor by Rev. Henderson. Only relatives and intimate friends witnessed the ceremony.

The house had been beautifully decorated for the occasion. All of the rooms were hung with festoons of smilax, with white roses in the parlor, American Beauties in the dining room, and white chrysanthemums in the hall and sitting room.

Eighty guests sat down to the three-course luncheon served by Mrs. Bowerman. The Misses Jennie Boomer, Myra Holsapple, Lulu Winkley, Pearl Willey, Nellie Dudley, Maude Nicholson, Besala Green and Monica Gagan served the refreshments.

The bride was the recipient of many handsome presents, one of the most substantial was the home at 122 Madison street where the young couple will reside after their return from a short honeymoon trip. Mr. Munger is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Munger of this city and for the past three years has held a responsible position with the pickle preserving firm of L. A. Budlong, Chicago. The bride is a graduate of the class of '96 of the Janesville high school.

SON OF MILLIONAIRE MARRIES IN SECRET

Young Couple of Niles, Mich., Elopes to South Bend, Ind., to Escape Grand Wedding.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 28.—Mortimer A. Dittenhoefer, a prominent attorney, and Miss Gertrude Gunsburg, a leader of Niles, Mich., society, were secretly married in South Bend Oct. 25. The marriage of the young couple was very romantic. There was no thought of a wedding between Mr. Dittenhoefer and Miss Gunsburg before Thanksgiving day, but an inspiration caused the couple to decide that a quiet marriage, known only to themselves, the groomsmen, bridesmaid and the officiating magistrate, would be just the proper thing and far better than the ostentatious wedding which had been planned by the mother of the bride.

Mrs. Gunsburg was away from home. Having made up their minds to carry out the plan, Miss Bertha Gunsburg, sister of the bride-to-be, and Charles Swain were sworn to secrecy and appointed bridesmaid and groomsmen respectively. The wedding party came to South Bend on an interurban car, and after a delay of a few hours, which time was consumed in finding County Clerk George H. Alward and Justice Luther Lindeblad, the ceremony was performed in a private parlor at the Oliver hotel. The groom is a son of A. B. Dittenhoefer, a millionaire merchant of Mansfield, O.

Glennon has expressed considerable displeasure at the unusual number of euchre parties and festivals given under the auspices of the Catholic parishes in his diocese for the purpose of raising church revenue. RECEIVER HITS BIG PROMOTERS

Morgan and Schwab Are Given Severe Scoring in Report to Federal Court.

NO WORDS MINCED

Drastic Letter Is Read with Great Interest by Those Concerned in the Case.

[Special By Scripps-McLae.]

New York, Oct. 28.—J. Pierpont Morgan, Charles M. Schwab, Col. J. J. McCook and other apostles of "modern" financial methods are arraigned severely by Receiver James Smith, Jr., in his report on the United States Shipbuilding company's affairs, which has been completed for filing with United States Circuit Judge Kirkpatrick in Trenton.

Receiver Smith states that Charles M. Schwab, J. Pierpont Morgan, Herbert Satterlee, Morgan's son-in-law, and several vendors or controlling owners of constituent companies received bonds and stock for which no equivalent was ever paid the United States Shipbuilding company.

Millions Come Easy.

His report charges that Schwab and Morgan alone received $20,000,000 preferred and common stock for which they rendered absolutely no equivalent. He strongly recommends that all such holding be assessed at a fair estimate on their face or market value.

He also characterizes as reprehensible the secret Morgan-Schwab-Harris, Gates & Co. agreement by which the $20,000,000 of Morgan and Schwab preferred and common Shipbuilding stock was to be marketed in advance of other securities.

Ugly terms, such as "fraudulent" and "reprehensible," abound in the voluminous report, which is remarkable also for its drastic and unglorified handling of various questionable phrases of United States Ship Building promotion, and particularly the farcical sale—or loan—of the Bethlehem Steel company by Charles M. Schwab.

Urges Receiver for Plant.

Receiver Smith goes so far as to intimate strongly that Charles M. Schwab was acting simply as an agent for the Morgan billion-dollar steel trust when he paid $7,200,000 for the Bethlehem plant. The receivership report specially italicizes the questionable manner in which J. Pierpont Morgan dominated C. M. Schwab as well as others in the shipyard promotion in forcing the purchase of the Bethlehem plant for $10,000,000 first-mortgage gold bonds—a lien on the Bethlehem plant—and $20,000,000 preferred and common United States Ship Building stock.

The receiver strongly recommends that a receiver be appointed for the Bethlehem steel works. The report closes with an urgent appeal for a court order assessing the vendors or other parties, who may have received Ship Building securities without paying a proper equivalent, a sum up to a fair estimated value of their holdings.

TRIES TO ASSASSINATE PRESIDENT OF MEXICO

Former Convict Fires Five Shots at Diaz as He Rides By on Street Car.

Guanojuato, Mex., Oct. 28.—An attempt was made on the life of President Diaz, who was a guest of the state government during the festivities here.

The president, his staff and guests were passing by the Oantador garden in a street car when a man of the lower class, Enas Toscano, approached the car shouting and fired five shots from a revolver at the car, doing no harm.

Pablo Escanodon of the president's staff rushed out of the car and caught the man, wrenching the revolver from his grasp.

The police took Toscano to prison. He is a man with a bad criminal record, and was only recently released from prison at Granditas, where he had served a term for homicide. The matter will be investigated. One theory is that Toscano was drunk and another that he deliberately planned to shoot the chief magistrate.

The president remained perfectly cool and was acclaimed by the crowd of citizens, showing their joy at his escape.

Toscano's evil record makes the theory of a deliberate attempt at assassination appear probable.

Kills Farmer's Son.

Dingess, W. Va., Oct. 28.—Millard Adkins, son of a wealthy farmer, was walking home with two young women when Stewart Price, jealous of Adkins' attention to them, shot him and crushed his skull.

THE JANESVILLE MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION HELD THEIR FIRST ANNUAL DINNER LAST EVENING

AN INTERESTING PROGRAM FOLLOWED THE REPAST—MUSIC BY THE ORPHEUS ORCHESTRA—EXCELLENT SPEAKING PART OF THE EVENING'S PROGRAM.

CONGRESSMAN ADAMS, OF MADISON, GAVE AN ABLE TALK WHICH WAS GREATLY ENJOYED.

The Glowing Future of Janesville as a Manufacturing City, Was the Main Topic Brought Up for Discussion—Banquet Was Held at the Park Hotel—Many Visitors From Out of the City Were the Invited Guests of Members of the Club.

One hundred guests who partook of the bounteous repast provided by Landlord Kemmerer at the Park Hotel last evening, gazed out into the unexplored country of the future and saw smiling cities which they identified without difficulty as their own. The keynote of all utterances at the first meeting of the Janesville Manufacturers' association was good citizenship and the progressive spirit. Those who ventured to prophesy professed the broadest optimism and confidence in the future of both city and nation, and the pictures which they painted were tinted with the brightest of colors.

Toastmaster Richardson
Hon. Victor P. Richardson acted as toastmaster at this gathering and his introductions were all in a happy vein. He had a "cracker" on his whip and almost invariably used it on his victims in the midst of words of fulsome praise and eulogy. In his opening address Mr. Richardson set forth the purposes of the organization. He said in part:

A New Departure
Gentlemen: In opening the intellectual program I wish to congratulate the manufacturers of Janesville on this new departure in their lives. This is the first time in the history of the city that they have come together, as manufacturers, and have shown a disposition to unite their varying influences for the common good. It is true that this was done. If we are to build up our individual business and the city in which we live, we must give each other all the help possible and with the strength which comes with combination, we must strive for all the rights and privileges to which we are entitled.

Take Hand in Affairs
The very life of Janesville depends on its factories. This being so, it is time that the men who build, operate, and extend these factories should as a body make themselves felt in the affairs of city and state. Manufacturers as a rule dislike to appear outside of their business, but the success of any community as a manufacturing center depends on so many things that are matters of public concern, that those who are so deeply interested in that success should have a share in the conduct of affairs.

Gleaned from Census Reports
In a recent reading of the last census reports the speaker had discovered that Wisconsin stood ninth in the union in general manufacturing, seventh in the amount of capital invested in manufacturing, first in the manufacture of lumber, second in dairy products, fourth in leather, agricultural implements and malt liquors, fifth in paper and pulp, eighth in flour, and ninth in iron and steel. The successful manufacturer does not look to the past except for experience. In the past ten years the manufacture of lumber had decreased 5 1/2 per cent, flour and grist had increased 8 1/2 per cent, dairy products had increased 189 per cent, the output of foundries and machine shops had increased 163 per cent, and car manufacturing 184 per cent. The greatest percentage of increase had been in the iron line.

Cuts for Investors
The lesson to be derived is this: If we are investing any money it should be in the branch that is developing along the line of least resistance. The statistics show that there must be in this state certain conditions favorable to iron manufacture. Twenty-one per cent of the taxes in Wisconsin are paid by the manufacturing industries. This is a much larger percentage than that paid in any of the other great manufacturing states barring Illinois where the percentage is 24 per cent. Is this right? The question is being agitated. The speaker would not say anything that might be construed as having a political bearing but the matter was worth while investigating.

A. S. Baker Introduced
Mr. Richardson welcomed the guests from other cities and expressed the hope that this meeting was the first of many to come. A. S. Baker of the Baker Manufacturing Co., unlike most manufacturers, thought less of himself than of those with whom he was connected. His plan of profit sharing had features never before brought out by manufacturers or political economists. In a recent article by a student of social and economic affairs it had been stated that the greatest benefit of this particular method accrued to the community—that it had elevated the tone of the entire city of Evansville—that the people were morally and intellectually better for it. Is so, Mr. Baker was better than a builder of business—he was a builder of men.

To Solve Labor Problem
Mr. Baker said that he had not studied the question of profit-sharing in a general way. After the business at Evansville had been running a number of years, the labor problem and other things which confronted the concern seemed to make a change in policy desirable. Five years ago the solution of the question by a method of profit-sharing was undertaken. At first stock was offered at a reasonable price to home investors but this did not solve the problem. After a year of successful business there was a cash dividend of ten per cent and we paid to each man ten per cent of what he had earned. Such a process was bound to prove embarrassing as it took the cash out of the business. If a plan could be devised whereby common stock could be issued against the surplus and given out instead of cash, the concern would be the gainer.

Method of Division
In 1899 the capital stock of the Baker Manufacturing Co. was increased to $300,000, the same to consist of two thousand shares of $100 to be known as preferred stock, fully paid up, and to be issued to the present stockholders in proportion to the shares then owned by each; and one thousand shares of $100 each to be known as common stock and to be issued to the profit-sharers—from that part of the net profit remaining after a dividend of five per cent had been paid on common stock already issued, and after ten per cent of the balance remaining had been deducted for a sinking fund and fifteen per cent of the balance then remaining had been paid over in cash to those in profit sharing. The dividend on preferred stock was arbitrarily fixed at five per cent.

What It Did for Labor
In the year 1899 the earnings of labor were increased 60 per cent; in 1900 nearly 83 per cent; in 1901 about 74 per cent; in 1902 something over 98 per cent. It will be smaller this year. $104,187.76 has been issued in common stock thus far.

Increased Efficiency
The gain from this system had been increased efficiency. There are no labor troubles. Every man is an interested partner. The labor bill is quite light. Under the old system 5 per cent more men would have to be employed. The waste item is reduced to a minimum. Many applications are received. Men have to serve two years before they come into profit-sharing and they are naturally closely watched by those already enjoying this benefit.

Own Their Homes
The only difficulty the speaker would mention was with certain men who couldn't stand prosperity and when they had accumulated a thousand or two in stock wished to see the money. The company formerly bought in the stock in such cases but does not do so any longer. Mr. Baker said that some labor organizers visited the factory but that they had never received a dollar. Nearly all of the men were married and owned their own homes.

Stanley B. Smith
Knowing the vindictive nature of the next speaker and fearing that he might receive notice to withdraw his overdraft, the toastmaster said that he would not utter the many bright things that he had in mind to speak of Stanley B. Smith, president of the First National bank. Mr. Smith alluded to the seismic disturbances in his bosom when he was compelled to rise and speak before the ambassadors from the German colony of Milwaukee and the conscript fathers of Madison. Whether his subject, "Progressive Janesville," was to be discussed in the past or future tense, he did not know.

Janesville Not Ambitious
Janesville had not been a very ambitious city and no great attempt had been made to interest foreign capital here. There were some serious doubts as to the advisability of making extraordinary efforts to increase the size of the city. A hundred years ago only one-thirtieth of the population of our country lived in cities of 8,000 or over. Now the proportion was one-third. The addition of people to a city meant more than proportionately larger taxes and debts.

Expenses Low Now
Janesville exists and conducts its business with a total annual expenditure of about $125,000. Of this sum about $100,000 is raised direct and the balance through saloon licenses and other privileges. The total cost was trifling compared with that of other cities. It costs four times as much to sustain the University of Wisconsin.

Some Disadvantages
It might be a serious question whether it was desirable for some cities to become manufacturing centers. Beloit, twenty years ago, was an educational center. The annual commencement of its college was an event in southern Wisconsin. Now the great manufacturing concern had absorbed this interest. Twenty years ago it had no saloons. Now its twenty or more bars are said to be even nicer than those of Madison.

Hon. J. W. Groves
Hon. J. W. Groves, mayor of Madison, spoke on "Our Capital City." Twenty years ago manufacturers little dreamed that they had any place in municipal affairs. Now it is regarded as the duty of every man who interests others to invest in manufacturing to safeguard their interests by being familiar with all sides of municipal affairs. Madison had found her rates of taxation higher than those of neighboring cities and it became incumbent upon her to increase her resources and avail herself of her natural advantages. Business men had lent a helping hand and new factories had been secured. In ten years it had grown from a city of 15,000 to nearly 21,000. The 22,000 did not believe that any harm had come to the university interests from the building of manufacturing industries. The college boys came in contact with the men and such environment could not fail to prove beneficial.

John H. Fethers
In introducing Hon. Ogden H. Fethers the toastmaster recited a bit of doggerel on "Any Old Thing," which was the subject of response. The speaker was reminded of the story of the horse thief, who, with the noose about his neck, when asked if he had anything to say replied that he was so darned scared that he couldn't think of them. One of the most mirth-provoking of his anecdotes related to the Maine farmer, who upon the death of his fifth help-meat, remarked with much content that he was "just out of wives." In answer to questions concerning her health that were propounded by neighbors.

What Makes a City
Hon. H. C. Adams of Madison gave one of the most stirring addresses of the evening in responding to "What Makes a City." He said "but he would admit that he never made a city, but he had tried to make one and was willing to make one. Madison was doing well and hoped to do better. He did not believe that the only way to make city governments what they ought to be was to take them out of politics. Citizens' reform movements stirred up the people for a time but were not lasting. Municipalities are and will be controlled by political parties. The only remedy was for good men to go into the political organizations of either party and make them what they ought to be. A city cannot be made of brick and stone. It must be made of men.

Need Much Charity
They must be men of generous and broad ideas and must have a reasonable charity for older men who laid the foundations of the city in other times under different conditions. There must be a whole lot of charity and regard for other men's feelings. We of this generation want to live in a live city. Madison was only a university town. Now it is a city stirring and humming with life. Optimism must prevail. The world is not growing worse. If it is education and Christianity are failures. "If there is anything I abominate, it is the kick in society or business. You have a good city here. It is a rival of Madison in just one way—it wants to be as clean and good as it can be. We join hands and wish you God-speed."

Capt. Pliny Norcross's Mills
Capt. Pliny Norcross was introduced as a man eminently qualified by years of experience to discuss "Old Mills." Of all the addresses of the evening he had been most impressed with that of W. S. Baker. Through the dark clouds of labor disturbances he seemed to see a glimmer in this solution of the problem. He briefly recounted his experiences with old mills and recalled the time when Rock county was one great wheat field. Now it had almost ceased to be raised and the old-fashioned method of grinding wheat was a relic of the past.

Seek Adaptability
Janesville lingered too long on the old idea that it was one of the oldest cities in the state and that no harm could come to it. Perhaps we don't accept the situation readily and promptly. We have tried, but not always in the right way. We were not satisfied with one cotton mill and built another, coming into competition with factories that were being built in districts where the cotton was grown and coal was readily available. Then again, factories making heavy goods belong on the sea shore or near navigable waterways. The iron mines of the north and the coal mines of the south must be somewhere contiguous, or within reach of each other by cheap transportation. The lesson was obvious. Those factories that had been successful had been close to their raw materials. The growing of sugar beets and the production of eggs were discussed at some length. In conclusion he said: "Let us adopt those manufactures and grow those products that are congenial to the climate, general environment and intelligence of our people."

Hon. Burr Jones
Hon. Burr Jones of Madison was called on for a few remarks. Mr. Fethers' story of the man with five wives reminded him of another along the same line. In this instance the husband finally died and after consultation the last wife and sympathetic friends erected a tombstone bearing the inscription "Our Husband." The manufacturers that were going to succeed must have men who understand the business, not men attracted by bonuses, grit, perseverance, and patience were needed. We have been having our fat years and the speaker hoped the lean years were yet far off, though come they must. Never before had such a responsibility rested on manufacturers. Labor problems must be faced bravely, fearlessly, but with infinite patience and forbearance. Employers must be dealt with in a tolerant spirit.

Mr. Adams Speaks Again
H. C. Adams arose at the conclusion of Mr. Jones' address. He said that it was not his custom to speak more than once the same evening, but that he had something to add to Jones' and Fethers' anecdotes of the man with five wives. "This woman had seven husbands. I'll raise them two. This woman had inherited some money and when the seventh husband died she erected a marble shaft with this simple inscription—'Seven Up.'" No one could raise Mr. Adams and the toastmaster declared the meeting adjourned.

Visitors Present
Throughout the evening the Orpheus Mandolin club played in a room adjoining the hall. Among the guests from without the city were Congressman Adams, Mayor Groves, Dr. Frank Smith, W. E. Pette, B. W. Jones, and Hon. Burr Jones of Madison; D. B. Yates and Mr. Thompson of Beloit; and A. S. Baker of Evansville.

HONEY COMB A NATURAL PRODUCT

Bees Make Them, Not Manufacturers—Reward for Adulterated Honey Offered.

N. F. France, state inspector of apiaries, writes the following letter to the Gazette relative to an article that appeared in the paper:

Dear Sir:—I wish to call your attention to an article in your paper, Oct. 3, weekly, "Much Honey This Season." "Artificial Feeding." "Much honey on the market in big cities is made by bees fed on sugar or glucose." That statement written by your correspondent is not true, but far from it. I wish to say there is no adulterated honey on the market, and any one doubting the fact can get well paid for reporting evidence to the contrary to me. I enclose copy of article on this subject which I wish you would publish in the Janesville Weekly Gazette, and mail me sample copy, please.

Yours truly,
N. F. FRANCE.

The stories told about artificial honey comb being made or sold have not the slightest foundation in fact. There still exists a few people otherwise in their judgment, who do not know the truth about honey, and are too free to report what is not so. As general manager of the National Bee-Keepers' association I wish to say, there is not, and never was a pound of artificial honey comb. No one ever saw, or knew of any such being sold. For years there has been a standing offer by a reliable firm (a charter member of the above association) whose responsibility is unquestioned, of $1,000 for a single pound of honey comb made without the intervention of bees. This offer still holds good and is unclaimed. No extracted honey as it comes direct from the beekeepers is adulterated. But few places in the United States where even dealers have dared to offer for sale the same. State food laws define the penalties for the same. The National Bee-Keepers' association of about 1,600 members scattered throughout every state and Canada, are each one carefully watching for any adulterated honey on the market. Should any be found, the facts would be made known to proper officers. The goods analyzed, and if found adulterated, the guilty parties at once dealt with in accordance with the state laws therein.

Yours truly,
N. F. FRANCE,
General Manager of National Bee-Keepers' Association.

"CHUST LIKE DER GOOT OLDT SUMMER TIME!"

Fair tonight and warmer Thursday.

THE COMMON COUNCIL.

At the last meeting of the common council, resolutions were adopted which contemplate permanent improvements along right lines. The question of sewerage has long been a perplexing question, and while public sentiment, by vote, expressed itself in favor of a sewerage system, the old council was slow to act in the matter.

That the city needs a sewerage system more than it needs any other single improvement, is generally conceded. It is one of the first great needs of any city, and from the standpoint of sanitation alone can not afford to be ignored.

The opposition in Janesville comes from people who either have private sewers, or who are so situated that their personal wants along this line are supplied. There are many cess pools, and in some sections of the city old wells have been utilized for the purpose.

There should be a law against this latter practice, for the same vein of water may supply half a dozen wells in the vicinity and if the water is used, disease is sure to develop.

The council will be commended for action taken concerning sewerage. The system should be installed on every street before it is macadamized.

There is a good deal of theoretical nonsense about the use of the river as the dumping ground for sewerage. It is the natural reservoir, with a sufficient flow of water and active current to meet demands.

The city is already emptying into it 9 miles of private sewers, and much of this deposit is near the business section, yet but little complaint is made, and results have never been disastrous.

Madison experimented with theoretical sewerage and failed. It is a good deal like theoretical ventilation where air and sunshine are as free as water. The plant should be installed, and the natural reservoir utilized.

It is gratifying to know that the quarry and stone crusher plant is not to be permanently abandoned, but the council would have been commended had the plant opened at once, and the next 30 days spent in repairing the streets with suitable material and then left the city's property in care of a watchman for the winter. There may be a scarcity of funds, but that is no excuse for neglect. The city is abundantly able, and a large majority of its tax payers are willing to keep the city up to the standard.

Municipal reform means more than rigid economy, just as much as success in business means more than simple honesty. It means an intelligent and business-like administration. The experiment is on trial and results will determine whether or not it is to be made permanent.

THE OPEN SHOP

The demand for the open shop is becoming universal, and employers as well as non-union employees in all parts of the country are demanding of organized labor this just recognition.

The demand of employers is based on the argument that men who furnish capital are entitled to conduct their own business, and the argument is so plausible that it can not be successfully controverted.

The non-union man claims that he has a right to work without dictation or molestation, and this argument no reasonable man attempts to refute.

When President Roosevelt took the stand that he did in relation to the government printing office, he started the entering wedge for the justice of the open shop, and the industrial world has not been slow to follow it up.

Agitation has resulted in revolution. This does not mean a death blow to organized labor, but it does mean that unjust demands will not be recognized and that the day of arbitrary power is on the wane.

Organized labor, under conservative leadership is filling an important mission in the world of industry. When properly appreciated and managed it is a benefit to the labor world, but it has been cursed by erratic and impractical leaders, until it has reached a point where endurance could no longer be tolerated.

The summer of 1903 goes into history as one of the most remarked on record. Time has been wasted and millions of dollars that were ready to invest in permanent improvements is still idle or diverted into other channels. Labor has been the principle sufferer, and the loss sustained can never be made good.

The open shop is the only solution of the question, and it is coming to stay.

It is easy to ruin a business by dictation and strikes, but the same forces can never restore it. There will be thousands of idle men this winter, who will be glad to work in any kind of a shop, for while the times are still comparatively good, the tide is on the ebb, and employers are preparing to meet it.

The Manufacturers' association gave its first banquet at the Park hotel last night. The roll of membership and the interest manifested, is assurance that the organization has come to stay. That it will be a help to the business interests of the city is not a debatable question.

Every effort to place the business men in touch with each other is commendable. If the time ever comes when we can all pull together much more will be accomplished.

Mr. Bryan may be a good politician but he appears to be a failure on drawing wills. $50,000 is a good legacy. The man who attempted to leave it to him, must have been captivated by oratory.

Canada thinks that we might as well annex the whole country as to take what really belonged to us.

Chicago is likely to secure the next republican national convention. It is an ideal convention city.

When the water is all squeezed out of the stocks, John D. Rockefeller and J. Pierpont Morgan will still be able to eat three square meals a day while some of the poor suckers who invested will be dining at the lunch counters.

If the Milwaukee Journal has made any new discoveries in regard to the political situation in the state it might be well to speak about them.

Word has been passed around the district, that Congressman Cooper's renomination will not be opposed by the state administration. That ought to be worth something.

PRESS COMMENT

Eau Claire Telegram: The county board of La Crosse county failed to appropriate anything for the soldiers relief fund and the veterans have secured the co-operation of a department store which will raise money for indigent veterans by holding a sale.

Green Bay Gazette: "Asset currency" might not be a brilliant success if the assets happened to be trust stocks in such times as the present.

Eau Claire Leader: Many extensive lumbering firms in the northern parts of both Michigan and Wisconsin announce that, owing to the falling off in the demand and the downward tendency in prices, they will be obliged to reduce wages. They don't want to antagonize the unions, or anything of that kind, they are just simply forced to either curtail wages or shut up shops.

Oshkosh Times: Local barbers like the new rules, and as none of them hurt the customers any they are probably all right.

Milwaukee Sentinel: The Hartford Post admires Annie Russell, but wishes she would "put on her hostess and shoes, before the curtain rises. Instead of before the audience." The Post fails to appreciate a really thrilling dramatic situation, it seems.

Chippewa Herald: Chicago society has taken to clogging, and this terpsichorean novelty now promises to become quite fashionable.

Marquette Eagle Press: The automobilists wants all the horses tied when standing and the horse drivers want the autos to run a little more quietly.

Fond du Lac Commonwealth: The consensus of opinion among the officers in charge of the army maneuvers at West Point, appear to have been favorable to the re-establishment of the canteen. But the canteen in Kentucky would interfere with the business of the "moonshiner."

Profit Talks To Merchants

The best light is not the cheapest but the cost of any but electric light is not to be measured by any meter other than the shrinkage of the merchant's profits. Signs and excellent window lighting are his best two advertisers.

Both are now admitted failures unless the possibilities of incandescent electric light are made use of.

Janesville is justly proud of its retail stores but illuminated signs are but sparsely used and many dark and poorly lighted windows are a source of loss to their owners.

SENIORS WON FIRST CONTEST

They Defeated the Sophomores in the Game for the Denison Trophy.

The senior football team yesterday afternoon defeated the sophomores on the gridiron in the first contest for the Denison trophy. The game was an exciting one and the score of 11 to 0 shows that neither side had much the advantage and that it was not a walk-away. The next game will be between the juniors and seniors some afternoon next week. At present all eyes are turned to the game with Watervliet on Saturday. Paul Pratt, the famous water back, of the Wisconsin eleven, is coaching the Watervliet team and reports that they are in good condition. If the locals win this game it is probable that they will play some team from the north part of the state, possibly Eau Claire. If this should be so and the game played here it would be a good contest.

SAVINGS BANKS IN THE LINE CITY

SERENO T. MERRILL WRITES OF RESULTS IN BELOIT.

SHOWS REMARKABLE GROWTH

It Is Well Recommended by Bank Examiners Throughout the Country.

To Editor of Gazette:

Why there is only one mutual savings bank in Rock county. Want of information and wrong impressions regarding the time required of corporations and trustees for the transaction of the business or such banks is undoubtedly the reason why there is but one in Rock county.

A Hartford, Ct., editor depicting the advantages derived from mutual savings banks says: "Out west and down south where savings banks are run for the profits of the owners, and stockholders take the profits they cannot understand what these institutions are."

The people of Rock county can know and understand what these institutions are if they will take the Beloit Savings bank for an object lesson; they will find that in organizing a mutual savings bank the corporations are chosen at a public meeting called for the purpose, adopt a code of by-laws, choose twelve trustees and adjourn to the last Saturday of December to hear the annual report of the treasurer and to fill vacancies, if there be any, in their own board. Thereafter they meet only yearly unless for special purposes. The time required of the corporations does not usually exceed one hour a year.

The trustees immediately after their election choose of their own members a president, 1st and 2d vice-presidents, a treasurer, who is also secretary, and two others who act with the president and vice-presidents as finance committee. The trustees, as a body, meet only on the last Saturday of June and December to hear reports of the treasurer and make semi-annual dividends, unless called together for some special purpose.

The finance committee meets once a week or at the call of the treasurer to decide on applications for loans. Thus it will be seen that the duties of corporations and trustees are not at all as onerous as is generally supposed. No corporation or trustee can receive any pay directly or indirectly for his services. The treasurer and clerks devote their whole time, the same as if they were employed in a commercial bank, and compensation, commensurate with the services which the daily routine of the bank requires.

The law governing mutual savings banks authorizes the treasurer, directed by the trustees to postpone payments of certain accounts, according to amount, thirty, sixty, or ninety days. It also precludes the reception of more than $1,000 in any one year on one account, and no account exceeding $2,000 is entitled to dividends.

Another safeguard against a panic or run on the bank is a reserve fund which the trustees are required to create from the earnings before declaring dividends. The amount provided for this purpose cannot be less than one-fourth of 1 per cent, nor more than 1 per cent of the deposits, and thereafter the guarantee fund may be increased and remain equal to 10 per cent of the deposits.

A mutual savings bank is usually a plant of slow growth in its first stages. That at Beloit was especially so, because it was established in a community "out west where they did not understand what such institutions are." The first deposit was only one dollar. The bank was not two years old when the panic of 1893 which caused many failures throughout the country, threatened its existence, but it withstood the storm of that year as well as that of 1893, a fact that gave it a reputation for stability and safety; that has secured the confidence of 4,500 depositors, nearly half of whom are women and children who have now there in $225,000; the steadily increasing guarantee fund of the Beloit Savings bank now amounts to $50,000.

The Beloit Savings bank has opened the door and broken the ground for the establishment of a system of provident savings institutions of which S. D. Kilburne, bank examiner of New York, says: "It may reasonably be doubted if any one single agency has accomplished more to cultivate independence, and therefore good citizenship, and to keep down public charges on account of pauperism."

SERENO T. MERRILL.

MEETING ENDED; DOCTORS LEAVE

Interesting Talks Yesterday—Banquet a Great Success—Good Attendance.

Late yesterday afternoon the last session of the Central Wisconsin Medical society came to a most successful close. The banquet was a delightful one and the menu was one to tempt even the palate of a physician. During the dinner Dr. J. B. Whiting, of this city, was presented with a handsome loving cup as a mark of friendship and honor, as he is the oldest and one of the most respected members of the society. In presenting the token, one of the doctors made an appropriate and brilliant address. The many friends of Dr. Williams were glad to welcome him back to his former home. His address at yesterday morning's session was considered one of the best of the series.

HUMANE SOCIETY HELD A MEETING

WILL SEND DELEGATE TO STATE CONVENTION IN NOVEMBER.

HAD A GOOD ATTENDANCE

Committees Appointed and Plans Made for Coming Year—Much Interest Shown.

The Humane society held a special meeting last evening at the home of Mrs. E. F. Woods, Park Place, and considerable business of importance was transacted. The object of having the meeting at this time was the consideration of possible delegates to the National Humane society convention which will occur at Pittsburgh beginning November 4th, and the election of delegates to attend the state meeting to be held in Milwaukee sometime this coming month.

Delegate to Milwaukee
Owing to the expense necessary it was found inadvisable to send a representative to Pittsburgh but Mrs. Crosby was appointed to attend the Badger branch gathering and Miss Chittenden was chosen as alternate. The exact date of the state meeting has not been decided upon but it will be possible for one representative to attend in any case, whether the session in the Cream City will be held early or late in the month.

Enthusiasm Shown
Considerable routine business of the organization was transacted last evening and various committees were appointed for special branches of the work. It is believed that during the coming year much good and useful work will be carried out. Four prominent attorneys in the city, M. G. Jeffries, J. J. Cunningham, Charles E. Pierce, and William Smith, have offered their services gratis for the prosecution of any cases that may come up.

No Pay
A vast amount of good work has been done by the Janesville Humane society during the past year. The members and officers serve without any recompense other than the satisfaction of befriending little children and dumb animals. The local society is a branch of the state organization so the meeting which will be held in Milwaukee will be of great interest to those who belong in this city.

My Strangest Case

SYNOPSIS.

PART I.—Three rogues, Hayle, Kiltwater and Codd, meet at Singapore. Later they have learned of existence of hidden treasure at Sengkor-Wat—old Burmese ruins near Chinese border. Hayle only half believes account, but nevertheless agrees to join in search.

PART II.—Reaching Sengkor-Wat, the men make their way through the ancient streets and toward the once splendid palace. Toward dusk, after a most tedious search they come upon secret entrance to underground vaults, in which are discovered great quantities of bar gold and uncut rubies and sapphires. Hayle fills both hands with gems and the men make their way outside again. On reaching camp they find their two Burmese servants slain and horribly mutilated. Chinese soldiers, during the night Hayle seizes treasure and steals away into the jungle.

PART III.—Utterly exhausted and unconscious, Hayle is found by English officer, near frontier station of Nampoung. As soon as able he leaves for Kiangoon and thence to England.

PART IV.—Two months later another steamer at Nampoung, while out on a hunt comes across Kiltwater and Codd. Kiltwater explains they were traders who had fallen into hands of Chinese who had put out their own eyes and pulled out Codd's tongue. After recovering somewhat from effects of exposure and tortures they set off in pursuit of Hayle.

CHAPTER I.—George Fairfax relates how he became a detective in Australia and finally came to open up an office in London.

CHAPTER II.—Kiltwater and Codd try to secure Fairfax's services. They represent themselves as missionaries returned from China where a rich native patron turned over to them on his death a great fortune which was stolen by a guest (Hayle) at the mission. Fairfax almost concludes not to take case.

CHAPTER III.—Miss Kiltwater calls on Fairfax in behalf of her uncle and succeeds in persuading him to take up the work. Later in the day a stranger, who calls himself Edward Hayle, of the Santa Cruz Mining Company, seeks to get Fairfax to go to Argentina to shadow mine manager who is suspected of embezzlement. Detective replies he now has case on which will ensure him for some time. Fairfax at a leading jeweler's learns that unusually large uncut stones have there just been received, and gets description of man of whom they were bought.

CHAPTER IV.—One evening Fairfax finds himself followed by two ruffians, but manages to elude them. Suspecting they will repeat performance he goes forth the next night, with one of his assistants, a former clerk who answers to the description given by the detective; his name was Gideon Hayle. That same day an accident befalls him as he comes to Hayle, but the latter escapes into a cab. Fairfax follows in close pursuit. After a long chase the forward cab comes to a stop, but it is empty.

CHAPTER V.—After many persistent inquiries Fairfax locates Hayle in Foxwell's hotel, but misses finding him in by only a few minutes. Subordinate detectives are located at the various stations, and one of them, Dickson, manages to trace Hayle to Paris.

CHAPTER VI.—Fairfax takes advantage of necessary delay to spend Sunday at the Kiltwater home, and becomes very much impressed with the charms of Miss Kiltwater. He learns that it is she upon whom Kiltwater is drawing for funds for the pursuit of Hayle.

CHAPTER VII.—In Paris Fairfax enlists cooperation of Leglosse, the renowned French detective, through whose aid he discovers whereabouts of Hayle. Much to the surprise of Fairfax Hayle presents himself.

Though I laid down on the bed I did not sleep; my thoughts would not permit of that. The face of the woman who had trusted me so profoundly was before me continually, gazing at me with sweet, reproachful eyes. Oh! what a fool I had been to accept that rascal's invitation! The more I thought of it, the angrier I became with myself. Now, goodness only knew how long I should be confined in this wretched place, and what would happen during my absence from the world!

At last the dawn broke, and with it a weird, sickly light penetrated the room. I sprang from my bed and approached the window, only to find that it overlooked a small courtyard, the latter being stone-flagged, and surrounded by high walls. I could see that, even if I were able to squeeze my way out between the bars, I should be powerless to scale the walls. At a rough guess these were at least 12 feet high, and without a foothold of any sort or description. This being so, I was completely at the mercy of the men in the house. Indeed, a rat caught in a trap was never more firmly laid by the heels than I. At about half-past seven o'clock a small trap-door, which I had not noticed near the ground and the main door, was opened, and a grimy hand made its way in and placed upon the floor a cup of coffee and a roll. Then it was closed once more and made secure. I drank the coffee and munched the roll, and, if the truth must be confessed, poor as they were, felt this better for both.

At midday a bowl of miserable soup was handed in; darkness, however, had fallen some considerable time before I could detect any sound in the hall outside that might be taken to mean the coming of my evening meal. At last there was a clatter of feet, the bolts shot back, the key turned in the lock, and the door opened. A man carrying a lantern entered, followed by two others, and as the light fell upon his face I uttered a cry of astonishment, for he was none other than my old friend Leglosse, while behind him was the infallible Lepallard.

"Well, thank goodness we have found you at last," cried Leglosse. "We have had such a hunt for you as man never dreamed of. I called at your apartments late last night, hoping to see you, on important business, but you had not returned from a dinner to which you had been invited. I called again this morning, and was informed by the concierge that they had, up to that moment, seen nothing of you. When the good Lepallard informed me that you had left the restaurant in a cab with M. Hayle, and that the latter had returned to his apartments this morning in a great hurry, only to leave them a short time after with his luggage for the railway station, I began to grow uneasy. You have no idea what a day I have had looking for you, but it has been well spent, since we have the pleasure of seeing you again."

"I shall be grateful to you all my life for the service you have rendered me," I replied. "But how did you manage to gain admittance to this house?"

"It was quite easy; the birds had flown," he answered. "Has the suspicion not struck you that they were going to clear out and leave you there to starve?"

"The brutes," I answered. "But I'll be even with their leader yet. And now let us get away from here as quickly as possible. Have you any idea where our man has gone?"

"To Naples," Lepallard replied. "I disguised myself as a pompous old bourgeois, and I was behind him when he asked for his ticket and distinctly heard what he said."

"Then I shall go after him at once," I replied. "He will in all probability be off his guard. He will imagine me to be still locked up in this room, you see."

"And I shall accompany you, if you will permit me," said Leglosse.

"But why?" I asked in surprise. "What have you got to do with him? You have no case against him, and you cannot spare the time to do it simply out of kindness to me."

"It's not kindness, it's business, my friend," he replied. "You may not believe it, but I have a warrant for your man's arrest."

"On what charge?"

"On a charge of being concerned in a big embezzlement in Cochinchina," he answered. "We laid the other two men by the heels at the time, but the Englishman, who was the prime mover in it, we have never been able to lay our hands upon. I felt certain that day, when I met him in Amsterdam, that I had seen him somewhere before. Ever since then I have been puzzling my brains to discover where it was, and why it was so familiar to me. A photograph was eventually sent us of the Englishman by the colonial authorities, but in that photograph he, the person I suspect, wears a beard and a heavy mustache. It is the same man, however, and the description, even to the mark upon the face, exactly tallies with Hayle. Now I think I can help you to obtain a rather unique revenge upon the man, that is to say, if you want it. From what you have so far told me, I understand that you have no evidence against him strong enough to justify the issue of a warrant. Well, I have that evidence, and between us you may be sure we'll bring him back to Paris."

This was delightful hearing after all we had been through lately; at any rate I greeted the prospect of Leglosse's cooperation with acclamation. It would be hard if between us we could not find Hayle and bring him to the justice he so richly deserved.

"Now, let us get out of this," I said. "I must obtain something to eat. If I perish in the attempt, I am hungry. A basin of soup, a roll and a cup of coffee are all that I have had to-day."

"You shall dine at once," he answered, "and here. There is an excellent little restaurant farther down the street, and one of my men shall go there and tell them to bring you up a meal. After that you shall go home and change your costume, and then we will arrange what shall be done about the travelling."

This programme was carried out to the letter. We made a good meal, at least I knew that I did, and when it was eaten, a cab was procured, and in company with Leglosse I said good-bye to the house in which I had spent so short a time, yet in which I had been so miserable.

"I shall never know how to repay you for your kindness," I said to my companion as we drove down the street. "Had it not been for you and your men I should now be starving in that wretched place. I'll certainly forgive Hayle if he is ever successful enough to take me in again by one of his rascally tricks."

"You must not let him do that," returned the Frenchman, shaking his head. "Our reputations are at stake."

When I reached my own apartments the concierge was much relieved to see me. She had been told that I was dead, perhaps murdered, and Leglosse's visit to find me had not helped to reassure her. A packet of letters and telegrams were handed to me, which I carried up to my room to read them while I was changing my attire. Never before had I been so glad to get out of a dress suit.

I had just finished my toilette and was in the act of commencing the packing of the bag I intended taking with me, when there was a tap at the door. I opened it, to find the concierge there.

"There is a lady in the parlor to see monsieur," she said. "She has a maid with her."

"A lady to see me?" I asked, incredulously. "Who on earth can she be?"

The concierge shook her head. In my own mind I had arrived at the conclusion that it was Mlle. Beaumais, and that Hayle had sent her to discover, if possible, whether I had escaped from my confinement or not. On finding out that I had, she would telegraph to him, and once more he would be placed on his guard. At first I felt almost inclined not to see her, but on second thought I saw the folly of this proceeding. I accordingly entered the room where the lady was awaiting me. The light was not very good, but it was sufficient for me to see two figures standing by the window.

"To whom am I indebted for the honor of this visit, mademoiselle?" I began.

"Don't you know me, Mr. Fairfax?" the taller of them answered. "You forget your friends very quickly."

"Miss Kiltwater?" I cried, "what does this mean?"

"It is a long story," she answered, "but I feel sure that you will have time to hear it now. I am in terrible trouble."

"I am indeed sorry to hear that," I answered, and then glanced at her maid as if to inquire whether it were safe to speak before her. She interpreted the look correctly and nodded her head.

"Yes, Mr. Fairfax," she said, "you can say what you please before Nelly."

"Then am I right in interpreting your trouble as being connected with your uncle?" I asked.

"Yes, that is it," she answered. "You have guessed correctly. Do you know that he and Mr. Codd have disappeared?"

"Disappeared?" I repeated. "Have you any idea where they have disappeared to?"

"No, but I can hazard a very shrewd guess," she replied. "I believe they have crossed to Paris in search of Mr. Hayle. Since last Sunday my uncle has been more depressed than ever, while the paroxysms of rage, to which he is so subject, have been even more frequent than ever. If the truth must be told, I fear his troubles have turned his brain, for he talks to himself in such a queer way, and asks every few minutes if I have received news from you, so that I cannot help thinking his mind is not what it should be. You must understand that on Saturday last, thinking it might possibly be required for the case, I drew a large sum of money from the bank; more than £100, in fact. I securely locked it up in my writing table, and thought no one knew anything about it. Yesterday my uncle and Mr. Codd went for a walk, and did not return, though I watched for them several hours. While I was thus waiting I opened the drawer in the writing table to procure something I wanted, and discovered that the money was missing. Only one construction could be placed upon it, Mr. Fairfax. They had wearied of their inactive life, and had set off in search of Hayle."

"They are aware of his address in Paris, are they not?"

"Yes, my uncle repeated it from morning until night," she answered. "In point of fact he did little else. Oh! it is terrifying me beyond measure to think what may happen should they meet."

"You need not fear that," I replied. "Hayle has tired of Paris and has bolted again. Very probably to a place where they cannot hope to find him."

I believe she said "God be thanked!" under her breath, but I am not quite certain upon that point. I did not tell her of the trick Hayle had so lately played upon myself. If the telling were necessary it would be able to come later on.

"May I ask what brought you to Paris, Miss Kiltwater?" I inquired, after a pause.

"My great fear," she answered. "I wired to you from Charing Cross to say that I was coming. Did you not receive my message?"

I remember the fact that, not having time to open them all before I was called away, I had put some of the telegrams on one side. As all luck would have it Miss Kiltwater's must have been amongst these. I explained that I had been away from the house all day, and only that moment returned.

"I felt," she said, ignoring my excuses, "that I must come to you and tell you all that has transpired. Also that I might implore you to keep the men apart at any cost."

"We can easily find out whether they have arrived in Paris, and also whether they have been to Hayle's apartments," I said. "That would certainly be one of the places which they would try first."

While I was speaking there was the sound of a step in the corridor outside, and the next moment Leglosse entered the room. He was in the highest spirits, as he always was when he was about to undertake a new piece of work. Seeing that I had visitors he came to a sudden standstill.

"A thousand pardons," he said in French. "I had no idea that you were engaged. I will wait outside."

"Don't do anything of the kind," I returned in the same language. "Come in, and let me introduce you to Miss Kiltwater, who has just arrived from England."

"Miss Kiltwater?" he repeated, in some surprise. "Surely I understood you to say that your client, the gentleman who had lost his sight through Hayle's treachery, was M. Kiltwater?"

"That is quite right, and this lady is his niece," I returned. "She has brought me extraordinary intelligence. Her uncle and his companion (To be Continued)

You May Be Cured

544 Garfield Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL., October 9, 1902.

After doctoring for eleven months and taking forty-three bottles of medicine and finding no relief for leucorrhea resulting from irritation of a fallen womb I took Wine of Cardui and fourteen bottles cured me. This seems strange but it is the simple truth. Wine of Cardui helped me from the time I began taking it and having heard it praised so highly by friends who had tried it I felt satisfied that it would help me, and it did. It cured me. Took every bit of ache, pain and headache, cramps and dragging down sensations away till I felt young, strong and happy once more. It is a wonderful medicine and a true friend to women. When I look back on the months of torture I had it seems like a hideous nightmare. Wine of Cardui will cure any woman I believe. I have more faith in it than all other medicines combined.

Francis Kingsley
[Vice-Pres., Chicago Historical Club.]

How can you refuse relief when you know you are growing worse day after day? Shooting pains, irregularity, inflammation and bearing down pains make thousands of women miserable. Why drag through life never enjoying anything? Wine of Cardui has made over 1,500,000 weak and suffering women well and strong. We ask you to go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui and begin to take it at once. Do that and the health Mrs. Kingsley writes about will soon be yours. If you think special directions are needed in your case, address, giving symptoms, Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

RICHARD CARVEL.

From a book filled with so many exciting scenes as are to be found on the pages of Winston Churchill's "Richard Carvel," it is little wonder that the dramatic Edward E. Rose succeeded in making a most successful romantic play. Primarily the period of the action in which the story takes place is a most interest-receive a portrayal which makes the character very true to life. Mr. Robson is said to instill into his portrayal an earnestness which makes the hero of the Churchill romance a living and breathing character. He is an actor of great force and intensity, as well as being magnetic, all of which qualities are indispensable to one who would succeed in the stellar field. Mr. Robson has been before the public five years as a star. This year he has surrounded himself. It is stated, with a most excellently balanced company containing the names of Lucille Veronica, Pris-

ing one, for it is in the days just preceding and in the early years of our struggle for freedom with the mother country. The character of "Richard Carvel" is a noble one. He is a young man who is typical in the new America in breaking the fetters of oppression. In the hands of Andrew Robson who has presented this character for the past three years, "Richard Carvel" is said to cilla Knowles, Virginia Milton, Adele Hager, Marguerite Gallagher, Josephine Adams, John W. Bennett, Carson Davenport, J. K. Newman, J. J. Sambroni, H. Connor, Burton Downing, Harry Dunlap, I. B. Carter, Arthur Bentley, Hale Norcross, William Wallace, George Sanderson, and Spencer Hayes. Mr. Robson and his capable company will be seen at the Myers Grand.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Wednesday, October 28, 1863.—Beware of false profits.

Admiral Lissowsky and the Russian officers, some fifty in all, took their departure from New York last Wednesday morning, for Niagara Falls, on board the steamer Daniel Drew, up the Hudson. Three or four wagon loads of refreshments were put on board the boat for their special use.

Washington, October 27.—Special to World.—It is ascertained on the very highest authority that the removal of Gen. Meade has been decided upon and will take place as soon as the government can settle on a proper person. Our army is changing position somewhat for strategic purposes, the particulars of which it would be improper to mention.

Headquarters Army of the Potomac, October 27, 1863.—The enemy continued to be demonstrative on our front yesterday. As the 6th and 9th New York cavalry were going out near Beaton station to relieve the 4th New York and a Pennsylvania cavalry regiment on picket, they were opened upon by rebels with artillery. A brisk skirmish ensued, lasting several hours, our forces fall-

With Capt. Morris' disappearance the Sauber's crew sought their own safety. Twelve sailors on the Yale with life lines had been stationed along the sides of the big steel ship to aid in bringing the Sauber's crew to safety. One of these threw a coil of line into the lifeboat where Oller Robinson had been stationed in the bow. Robinson grasped the line, but a sudden lurch of the Yale dragged the unfortunate man over the side of the yawl. He was swept away and was seen no more. The next cast into the yawl was more fortunate and the Sauber's sailors were soon aboard the Yale.

Fire Destroys Steamer.
The Canadian steamer Advance, bound from Montreal to Fort William, Ont., with a cargo of merchandise, was destroyed by fire here. Tugs and cutter towed the steamer across from the Canadian Soo and assistance was given by the fire department. It was found necessary, however, to scuttle the boat. The loss will exceed $100,000.

Gossip From All Over

As a result of a special meeting of the Structural Iron Workers' Union held in Pittsburgh last Tuesday, damage suits aggregating $100,000 may be brought against the American Bridge company, charging negligence in the construction of the Wash-railroad bridge, where a disastrous accident happened recently.

The Grievance committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen of the Big Four railroad met in Indianapolis this week and had a conference with Big Four officials. The firemen are asking an increase of from 10 to 12 per cent. in wages.

The average wages received by each laborer in Iowa per annum have increased from $352.71, paid in 1896, to $428.11, paid in 1902, a gain of $75.40.

Evidence has been collected by the Bureau of Immigration, Department of Commerce and Labor, of a systematic and extensive violation of the contract labor law. Commissioner General F. P. Sargent has submitted the evidence to the Department of Justice and has requested the attorney general to institute proceedings against the alleged violators of the law. The case in hand involves hundreds of men, many of whom already in this country. Others are enroute to the United States and are expected to arrive in a few days. The men are Welsh coal miners and came to this country by a firm in Ponty Pridd, South Wales. Evidence indicates that many miners came to the United States under agreement. The situation of some of the imported miners is serious. Many of them have requested the Bureau of Immigration to send them back to Wales, as they say, the agreement under which they came here has not been kept. A majority of immigrants were obliged to sell their personal effects to obtain money with which to come to the United States, and a few of them were induced to dispose of places of business which previously had enabled them in part, to support their families.

After a lockout of over seven months the 600 employees of the plant of the American Corn Products company at Chicago will go back to work under union conditions, with union pay and labor. The difficulty arose over a demand for fifty cents an hour.

Members of the Milwaukee, Wis., coopers' unions recently retired from the shops individually. Demands for higher wages had been presented, the employers refusing to grant them. It is supposed that the action taken by the men was to avoid the appearance of having struck or walked out.

A warning to capital against cutting wages, if financial depression comes, was uttered by President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, and a plea for harmony between employers and labor by Senator Hanna was made at the closing session of the National Civic Federation conference held in Chicago recently.

The men in the fire department at Pittsburgh, Pa., have been organized into a local union of the American Federation of Labor.

The mayor of Reading, Pa., was recently fined $25 and costs for alleged violation of the factory laws in issuing certificates to two children under legal age. He claimed that he signed them through courtesy, without any intention of evading the law.

The factory inspectors of Pennsylvania are rigidly enforcing a crusade against Philadelphia swag shops. No clothing manufacture is allowed in tenements unless the occupant has a license and shows positive cleanliness.

Mechanics' and laborers' wages at Little Rock, Ark., have increased from three to five cents an hour over last year's scale.

Excursion Tickets to St. Paul and Minneapolis and Return will be sold by the North-Western line daily until November 30, 1903, from Janesville at $14 for the round trip, limited to return until December 15, 1903.

DEPOSITORS TAKE CASH FROM BANKS

CHARGE RUN TO CHICAGO MEN

Financiers of Illinois Metropolis Are Alleged to Have Started Rumors Regarding the Stability of the Trust Companies of the Rival City.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 28.—Shortly after the opening of banking hours Tuesday morning a run began on the Mississippi Valley Trust company swelling in volume as the day progressed. The streets were soon packed with people who came to withdraw their deposits. Former Governor D. R. Francis and others addressed the clamoring crowds in an endeavor to stay what promised to be a panic.

From noon on there was a run on the other trust companies; depositors withdrew their funds from the Mercantile, American Central, St. Louis Union, Missouri, Lincoln and Commonwealth. The main points of attack were the Mississippi Valley and Mercantile.

Police Preserve Order.
Squads of police were detailed to preserve some semblance of order. When 3 o'clock arrived the crowds were larger than at any time during the day and the police had to aid the bank employees to close the doors, so many were pressing in to get their money.

At 6 o'clock in the evening the streets in front of the Mississippi Valley bank were still crowded with angry depositors who had been unable to reach the paying teller's windows. Every depositor who got inside was paid in full on presentation of his claim, but not a third of the anxious ones were able to get waited upon.

Plenty of Money in Sight.
No cause is known for the raid, as the trust companies are believed to be able to meet all obligations. A report is current that the run was caused by stories sent out by Chicago financiers reflecting on the stability of the St. Louis trust companies.

At all the trust companies packages of currency were stacked up like cord wood, and gold and silver coins were piled up so that depositors could see that every preparation had been made to meet the run in the hope that confidence would be restored by the sight of the vast volume of money.

Will Enforce Notice Rule.
In the evening there was a conference between trust company and bank officials and it was agreed among them that thirty and sixty days' notice be required for the withdrawal of time deposits, in accordance with their by-laws.

The Mississippi Valley has an available surplus of $8,000,000 and the Mercantile $6,541,677.

The banks were not seriously affected by the run. Most of the depositors withdrawing their accounts were women, several of whom fainted from excitement. Male depositors were more philosophical and while strong language was frequently heard, there was no disposition to resort to extreme measures.

YOUR BRAIN NEEDS BLOOD

It Cannot Run Without Fuel—Dyspepsia Stomach a Poor Fireman.

If you want a strong, active brain, you must take care of your stomach. Brain workers are always the first to suffer from indigestion and dyspepsia. They are also first to give way under the strain.

An active brain requires plenty of rich, red blood. Dyspepsia shuts off the blood supply. Food cannot digest—cannot yield nourishment. Take a Rexall Dyspepsia Tablet each evening and you'll do three times as much work the next day. It will put your stomach right, get your bowels into condition and fill your arteries with good blood.

BUSINESS MAN TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE.
"I suffered for many years from loss of energy and ambition. I experienced colicky pains and severe bilious headaches. For days I would be incapacitated from attending to business. All food tasted the same to me. I took one package of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets and was wonderfully benefited. Since that time I have never been without them. When I feel any of the distressing symptoms mentioned above I take the tablets as directed. I find myself substantially cured and now eat food that formerly I dared not touch."—CHARLES M. JUNE, 609 Majestic Building, Detroit, Mich.
